BEFORE BREAKFAST.

On next Monday evening, in Carnegie hall, New York, Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth will receive the rites of ordination in the presence of a public assemblage to be presided over by Chauncey M. Depew and to be addressed by John Wanamaker. Among the ministers who will confer upon her the title of "Minister of the Church of God in General" are Dr. MacArthur, representing the Baptist denomination; Dr. Amory Bradford, the Congregationalist; Dr. George, the Presbyterian, and Dr. Josiah Strong, the Evangelical Alliance. The rite will confer upon Mrs. Booth the power of "performing all ministerial functions," and she will therefore be authorized to perform the marriage and baptismal ceremonies.

Aprons of the Princeton class, the following opinion by William E. Curtis rings the target bell: "The faculty and trustees of the Princeton university are wise, able, experienced and conscientious Christian gentlemen. They have quite as much interest in the welfare of their students as has the editor of the Voice or the synd of southern Missouri, and know much better how to protect and promote it. They consider that the grillroom of the Princeton Inn has a wholesome moral effect upon students who are inclined to be dissipated. They realize that certain students will drink whether or no. If drinking could be prevented they consider it wise to keep it under restrictions and restraints that will minimize it as much as possible. Before the Princeton Inn was built there were lots of low dives around the village in which the students were accustomed to carouse and where they were frequently seen intoxicated. Since the grillroom opened these places have closed from lack of patronage, and a drunken student is never seen upon the streets. Those who are best competent to judge and have a similar collection for the students agree that the grillroom has been a great benefit; that it has prevented instead of promoted dissipation, and all the faculty from President Patton down are of a similar opinion."

At the home of Mr. Martha B. Phelps, of Franklin street, at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, a reception was given in honor of Mrs. Clinton B. Pisk, national president of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. During the evening Mrs. Pisk gave a pleasing talk on what the missionary society is accomplishing in the industrial homes, the sea-coast homes, the work among the immigrants and in the field generally throughout the United States. Mrs. Phelps was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Fisk, Mrs. Freda Bennett and Mrs. G. B. Knapp, Miss Timberman, of this city, sang.

Rev. W. E. Crafts, D. D., LL. D., of Washington, D. C., who is considered one of the most prominent of Methodist divines, will preach in Elm Park church Tuesday evening. "Liberty" will be his subject.

For the thirteenth year the Columbia pad calendar for 1898, and while its general style is of the same familiar character, the many bright thoughts it contains contribute to its friends in many parts of the country, as well as abroad, are new, and will be appreciated by all who take an interest in bicycling, athletic exercises and good roads. The 1898 Columbia pad calendar contains a convenient arrangement of dates that will prove useful to house men, and as plenty of space is reserved for memoranda, the pad may be used as a diary and as a reminder for business appointments and obligations. The month's prices are indicated in the calendar for the benefit of those who wish to have this information. It can be obtained by mail pre-paid for five two-cent stamps by addressing the calendar department of the Pope Manufacturing company, Hartford, Conn.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the new school today. Mr. E. Chamberlain and Mrs. C. B. Scott, of the friends of the Home for the aged, have kindly contributed their rarest palms and sycamores and the effect is surprisingly beautiful. The board of trustees is convenient and easy of access and it is to be hoped that every friend of the Home will pay a visit to the exhibitions. The Lawrence orchestra will provide music today and this evening. Welch has loaned handsome jardiniere and Michaelis Bros. have loaned Persian rugs for the occasion.

The lecture to be delivered this evening at the Second Presbyterian church by Professor Sabin will be an enjoyable entertainment as a series of stereoscopic views of Paris and other points of interest in France will be shown. The admission is free and the proceeds will help a most worthy enterprise, the McCall mission.

The dinner and supper today at the Young Women's Christian association promise to be well patronized. An unusually fine menu will be provided and special care will be taken that the business men are served very promptly.

PERSONAL. John R. Raynsford, of Montrose, is in the city on business. Miss Marie Ellison, of Cleveland, is visiting Miss Williams, of Jefferson avenue. John Johnston, of Bethlehem, was a guest at Mrs. L. D. Powers, of Cedar avenue, yesterday. Mrs. and Mr. W. Mulford, who have been guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. D. W. Seben, have returned to their home at Unadilla, N. Y. Miss Louise Wilecock, manager of the millinery department of The Leader, has gone to New York to attend the horse show millinery opening.

REUNION OF EX-PRISONERS OF WAR. They Will Gather Next Tuesday in Music Hall.

Next Tuesday the annual reunion of the ex-prisoners of war association of Lackawanna county will be held in Music hall. Although the title indicates that membership in the association is restricted to residents of Lackawanna county such is not the case. It has members scattered all over this end of the state. Halsey Lathrop, of Peckville, is president of the association and Colonel E. H. Ripple secretary. At 2:30 on Tuesday afternoon the business meeting of the association will be held in Music hall, and at 6 o'clock the banquet will be served in the dining room adjoining the hall.

The campfire which is always the great feature of these reunions, begins at 8 o'clock. Invitations have been extended to the two Grand Army posts of the city and the Sons of Veterans to attend. It is probable that the reunion will be attended by some of the most prominent Grand Army men of the state.

Advantages of Conservatory Training. In the "Etude" of November, Mr. Henry Hollen says the following: "Conservatory training is far reaching, and one who has received such training is rarely narrow-minded, or one-sided. The musicianship of such a person does not lie solely in his vocal organs or in his finger-tips. One advantage of Conservatory study which should not be undervalued is the musical atmosphere. The student is an inhabitant of a musical sphere where nothing foreign may enter in and hinder. Listening to a class-mate perform is most beneficial. Conservatory students are able to discern mistakes made by others which if made by themselves they might not see. The ambition to equal or excel others spurs him on to greater effort. In the privacy of the teacher's studio the pupil often displays apathy and slovenliness, but before hypothetical class-mates, rarely. In the class the student hears, feels, sees, understands and memorizes much that the teacher approves in others. Advice given to others he can appropriate for himself, and, by observing mistakes in his neighbor, he is capable of avoiding and correcting his own shortcomings."

Musical Studio. Miss C. E. Rosencrans of 603 Washington avenue, will receive pupils for instruction on the piano and organ. Miss Rosencrans has the privilege of bringing with her from the Faculty of the S. S. Seward Institute, and also from the First Presbyterian church at Florida, N. Y., highest testimonials to her ability as teacher and organist. Special attention given to technique.

A $75,000 BREAKER DESTROYED BY FIRE

Delaware and Hudson Company's New No. 2 at Olyphant Is Consumed.

SUPPOSED INCENDIARY ORIGIN

Flames Started in an Annex Where Culin Screening Was Carried on, and Enveloped the Whole Structure in a Remarkably Short Space of Time—Was Newly Built and in Operation Only Six Weeks—Man with a Torch Seen Running Away.

The Delaware and Hudson Canal company's No. 2 breaker at Olyphant was totally destroyed last evening by a fire of supposed incendiary origin. The flames broke out at about 5:50 p. m., in what is known as the "annex," a small structure adjacent to the chutes, where culin screening is carried on, and in an almost incredible short space of time the fire had communicated with and enveloped the main structure. The gong was blown as soon as the fire was discovered and the hose companies of Olyphant, Peckville, Peckville and Throon hurriedly responded. By the time they were prepared for fire-fighting there was nothing left for them to do but ply their streams on a mass of flaming debris. The most remarkable feature of the fire was the rapidity with which the flames spread. One of the men employed in the boiler room said that when he heard the shouting and looked out and saw the flames at the foot of the chutes, he hastily clambered up the hill to the shaft to give the alarm, but before he could reach its summit smoke and fire were bursting forth from the head house.

The fact that it is a new breaker makes this all the more remarkable. It might be said to have been still in course of erection, but it was the old No. 2 breaker, which had done service for over thirty years, was torn down and the one destroyed last night erected in its place. It took three months to build it and it was only six weeks ago that it started up again, after idleness consequent upon the rebuilding.

LARGE, MODERN BREAKER. It was one of the largest, costliest and possibly the most modern breaker in this region. The Delaware and Hudson company regarded it as its model breaker. Only the newest and best machinery was used in its equipment and many of the ideas which entered into its construction and appliances were unknown to any other breaker hereabouts. It represented in money nearly $75,000. The Delaware and Hudson company carries no insurance, being one of the several large corporations which do not carry such insurance, establishing a fund for this purpose with what ordinarily would represent the money paid to an insurance company in premiums.

The breaker had a capacity of 1,200 tons a day and employed 550 men and boys. It was one of the main supports of the borough of Olyphant and while its destruction is an embarrassing loss to the company it is a calamity to the people dependent upon it. During the six weeks that it was in operation it worked full time and were making excellent wages, miners easily earning $70 and $80 a month. Owing to the long idleness which preceded, the men in poor health, and the long shut down that will ensue. What caused the fire is a mystery but if the testimony of an aged Hungarian ash man employed about the breaker house is to be believed it was undoubtedly of incendiary origin. He says that he saw a man with a miners lamp in his hand emerge from behind the annex and run down the tracks. At about the same instant he saw flames shooting above the eaves of the structure and surmising at once that he was fighting with the torch had been guilty of incendiarism gave chase.

HUNGARIAN GAVE CHASE. He followed until the fire bug was lost in the darkness and then returned to report what he had seen. Foreman John Mooney was too busy fighting the fire to make an investigation into its cause. He could offer no explanation of its origin and was inclined to share the general belief that what the Hungarian ashman had reported was reliable. How soon the breaker will be in operation again is merely a matter of conjecture. A number of Delaware and Hudson officials came to the scene on a special engine from Scranton but as far as could be learned the subject of rebuilding was not discussed. The shaft is located 150 feet from the breaker site and was in no wise injured.

The employees have hopes that the company will keep the mine in operation, sending the coal through the inside connections to one or both of its adjacent breakers, the Eddy Creek and Grassy Island. Seven years ago when the old No. 2 breaker was for a time thrown idle by a fire this plan was carried out and greatly reduced the resultant hardships.

HELD A FAMILY REUNION. The Evans Children Meet at the Home of a Sister in This City.

The Evans family held a reunion at the home of Mrs. Roy Tyler, a member of the family, in this city on Sunday. The family consists of six brothers and one sister. The eldest two brothers are well-to-do farmers in Gibson township, Susquehanna county. Three brothers are residents of this city—Daniel J. Evans, Benjamin J. Evans and Jonah Evans. The next brother is Rev. D. E. Evans. The only sister dwells here, Mrs. Royal Tyler. At her house the family gathered. On account of some members of the family being absent until recently in the far west, the last reunion convened some twenty years ago at the home of one of the eldest brothers in Susquehanna county. One brother traveled over 400 miles, he and all his household, to be present. The parents were then in the neighborhood of 80 years old. Two of the brothers now are closely approaching their eightieth year.

Goldsmith's Bazaar Remodeled.

On going into this well known establishment now one could hardly recognize it as the same store. Improvements have been made throughout the entire building from basement to top floor. Departments changed around and several of them greatly enlarged. The second floor is now fully as handsome as the first floor, because it has greatly enlarged cloak, drapery and underwear departments, and owing to full plate glass front it is always light as day, which is a source of great satisfaction to customers in the selection of their goods. The Messrs Goldsmith, who have done so much towards modernizing the business methods of this city, are now reaping the rewards their richly earned efforts in always having a busy store. They were the first ones to establish the Monday bargain day, the first to have delivery wagons, the first to sell at strictly one price, so it has become a well known fact that there is no safer place to trade in America. Always up-to-date and springing surprises upon the people. They announce in the advertising columns of The Tribune today that they will start a series of Friday afternoon bargain sales, which will utilize any bargain sales ever before known or dreamt of in this city.
